Suppliers

Our supply chain consists of reputable suppliers that provide goods and services to enable us to carry out our business activities. We expect all of our suppliers to comply with relevant legislation including the UK Modern Slavery Act and this is part of our due diligence process when selecting suppliers.

Policies on Slavery and Human Trafficking

We are committed to ensuring that slavery and human trafficking form no part of our supply chain or business activities. We require our suppliers to act ethically and with integrity in their dealings with us and to implement appropriate systems to ensure the avoidance of slavery and human trafficking within their own spheres of business.

Due Diligence

As part of our efforts to mitigate the risk associated with slavery and human trafficking, we have taken the following actions:

- we have included ethical issues within our Sustainability Policy;
- we screen our main suppliers and agencies to ensure there is no modern slavery, bonded working or human trafficking directly connected with our business and the services we provide;
- we have undertaken a supplier screening programme to inform our main suppliers of our objectives and have encouraged them to take leadership in this area;
- if we discover indications that our business is being associated with illegal practices (including prostitution and child exploitation) we will report such activity to the police and bar any perpetrators from our premises; and

- we will adjust our procurement policies and procedures to eliminate the possibility of child labour, worker exploitation and human trafficking associated with the general products and services we procure, with particular reference to sources of cotton for linen and towels; sources of tea, coffee and sugar as well as other 'at risk' foods; and, sources of jewellery and craft products.
